1. Source of Income

You need to prove that you have a steady source of income from either your job or business to qualify for a payday loan. Since there's no any other security involved, your proof of income becomes the only binding proof that you'll pay back the loan amount plus the accrued interest. 2. Personal Information

The personal information you provide is solely for identification and nothing else. We will require you to provide your valid government-issued identification document such as a valid driving license or a state-issued identity card with your photography. A proof of social security number (SSN) is also required.

We shall also need your operational phone number and home address. The email address may not be a requirement if the transaction is offline. However all online payday will require you to provide your official email address.

3. Bank Account Details

An active bank, prepaid card, or union credit account is a requirement before the loan is processed. You will need to have had a bank account for at least 1 month to qualify The idea behind having an active bank account is to facilitate both receipt of the processed amount and also the repayment of the same. The checking account and routing numbers are frequently used for online payday loan payments as well as the funding of the cash advance. A debit card may be an optional requirement for automatic payment.

If you're applying for the loan online, then the lender will have proper mechanisms in place to facilitate the verification and authentication of your account details. These steps are meant to safeguard all your personal and financial information and eliminate any chances of identity theft. You'll be required to verify your account via a phone call, SMS, or answer specific questions.
